RUBBER PRODUCTS CO. LEASES PLANT HERE

Company to Manufacture Golf Balls in Building Built for Chicken Cannery On Highway

One of the most encouraging evelopments in local industry as made this week with the easing of the Silver Gate Poul- y plant on the highway to the alifornia Rubber Products Cor- oration, and the beginning of ork to remodel the large concrete uilding into a golf ball factory. The selection of the local build- g was made by Edgar C. Huyck, esident of the company, who as in Redwood City yesterday aking preparations for the in- allation of the machinery. A e-year lease was consummated the company from Bianchi & ggerstaff, owners of the prop- y, through the realty firms of mbert & Walter and Leonard & ilt. Lester Prior of this city as instrumental in interesting s concern in Redwood City and uring the plant for this town. he factory as contemplated will the largest plant for the man- acture of golf balls west of St. uis. It will be used for the mplete manufacture of the balls for the refining of gutta per- . Arrangements have been mpleted for the installation of am machinery for the latter cess. Work will start on actual manu- facture of the balls as soon as the equipment can be arranged. The equipment which has been order- ed is the most modern of any plant in America and involves a new process ,the invention of Huyck and the property of his company. When ready for pro- duction the plant will employ more than 70 persons and will have a payroll in excess of $400 a day.

The California Rubber Products Corporation is capitalized for $300,000 and the greater part of the stock is owned by profession al golf players. The head office of the company is in San Francisco.

The building to be occupied by the concern was constructed sev- eral years ago by the Silver Gate Poultry Co. for the purpose of canning chickens. The company, however, failed to complete its enterprise. The building was purchased by Bianchi & Bigger- staff who have leased it to the ruber company. It is a re-enforced concrete building and contains 180,000 square feet of floor space. Arrangements have been made for the use of 250 horse power for electrical equipment, and the steam machinery will be supplied by gas heat.

TO ACCEPT NEW SCHOOL MONDAY

The McKinley school on Duane street will be accepted by the board of trustees of the school district on Monday if present plans are carried out. It was ex- pected that the building would be officially accepted by the board on Thursday, but because the plumbing contractor had not quite completed the specified work, it was thought best to delay the ac- ceptance until the later date.

The work will, however, not de- lay the opening of the new school, as by an arrangement with the contractor, the school will be oc- cupied on Monday as per schedule.

The new school is one of the most modern types of school ar- chitecture, designed by A. I. Cof- fey of this city, who was also the architect of the Sequoia Union High School and of the old gram- mar school which is now being torn down, and which was built 32 years ago. It is similar in style to the high school and con- tains 20 large class rooms. E. K. Nelson was the contractor. It is claimed by Ben C. Zimmerman, who has been acting as inspector of the work, that this school is the largest in the state for the contract price, $147,375.

The work of the contractor has been examined by the members of the board and is pronounced as highly satisfactory.

Judge Buck Passes 81st Birthday at Work

To have seen Judge Buck step- ping lightly up to his office on the second story of the court house Wednesday morning, the casual observer might not have seen any- thing particularly noticeable. To be sure, a broader smile than usu- al played over his benovient fea- tures, and there was a twinkle in his eye. But as he reached the door of his study—ah, there it was; the secret was out.

Awaiting the popular judge was a huge bouquet of roses with the compliments of County Clerk Elizabeth Kneese and her depu- ties, for Wednesday was the Judge's 81st birthay. Eighty-one years young his friends call him, and not without reason.

Judge Geo. H. Buck has a re- markable record. In the early part of this month he turned the 45th year of service as a public official. Of this time he has oc- cupied the superior bench of this county for 37 years. The other eight years were spent as district attorney of this county.

During his years on the Su- perior bench, Judge Buck has made some momentous decisions, and very few of his rulings have ever been reversed by the higher courts.

The birthday of the popular judge did not interfere with his labors. The business of his office has ever been his first considera- tion, and not even an 81st birth- day can interfere with that work.

Local Realty Man Passes Away Monday

Funeral services were held yes- terday afternoon from the James Crowe parlors to Clyde Erskine Akers, who passed away at his Palo Alto home Monday evening, following a brief illness. The services were conducted by Rev. R. J. Currie, pastor of the Con- gregational church, and were fol- lowed by interment in Alta Mesa cemetery.

The deceased was well known here. For several years Mr. and Mrs. Akrs resided on Finger ave- nue, and about two years ago, removed their home to Palo Alto. For the past year the deceased has been a realty salesman in the office of Lambert & Walter of this city.

Born in Iowa, the deceased came to California about nine years ago, and most of his time in this state was spent in this section. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Eva Akers; and by three sisters, Mrs. George Nelson of Redwood City; Mrs. Mary Yates of Menlo Park; and Mrs. Addie Wilson of Long Beach.

Mr. Knight's report as special administrator of the state was al- so settled. The attorneys for the administrator, Ross & Ross, were allowed fees in the sum of $100.

FINAL REPORT EXPECTED ON NEW STREET PROJECT

Meeting of Property Holders Called to Decide On Action for Building Permit Called For Monday Evening

Whether or not the proposed street connecting Broadway and Webster streets between Main and Washington streets will be built or the project for improve- ment indefinitely abandoned will be decided at a meeting of the property owners of the block in- volved to be held Monday evening. At this time final action on the re- quest of John Munday for a build- ing permit to construct a build- ing on his lot will be taken.

The matter has been before the town council for almost a year. The proposal to build a new street was made by property own- ers of the block just when Mun- day was preparing to build on his property. As Munday's property is involved in the proposal and would have to be purchased if the proposed street is built, his per- mit has not yet been granted.

On December 5th at a meeting of the board of trustees, the board took final action on the applica- tion of Munday for a building permit for his property. The ap- plication had been at that time before the board for several months and had been postponed from time to time, pending the final action o the project of building the new street over the creek.

Mayor Beeger reported at that time that the committee which had this matter in hand reported that the plans for securing the property were progressing rapid- ly and that they already had deeds for much of the necessary right- of-way. In view of this fact, the board felt it necessary to deny the application for a building as the Munday property will be includ- ed in that be secured for the con- struction of the new street.

Following this action by the board, Munday instituted a suit against the town of Redwood City through his attorney, J. E. Mc- Cudry. In his suit against the town, Munday asked for $2150 for driven, preparatory to laying the driven, prepaatory to laying the foundation of a building; $924 as money expended as architect's fees; $150 for surveying the prop- erty; and $82.50 for excavating done. In addition to seeking re- payment for these sums expended, Munday seeks $1020 for loss of rental due to the holding up of his permit.

The case was heard by Judge John L. Hudner of Hollister, sit- ting for Judge Buck of this coun- ty In his decision, while he fail- ed to order the payment of the amount claimed by the plaintiff, Judge Hudner recommended that Munday be reimbursed for the amount he was out through his permit being held up. He recom- mended that he be paid $85 per month as rental for the property which has been kept idle.

At a special meeting of the city council Monday evening the rec- ommendations of Judge Hudner were read to the city councilmen by City Attorney Albert Mansfield. As the matter is not an action by the city council, but is being done solely upon the recommendations of the interested property owners, the council decided to take no ac- tion on Judge Hudner's sugges- tions, but to call a meeting of the property owners next Monday at which time they will be asked to come to some decision.

Attorney Mansfield stated that deeds to most of the required property had already been secured. The expense of acquiring the re- mainder of the property, he stated, would be about $56,000.

PLEAD GUILTY ON TWO CHARGES

John Fava and Ettora Bella arrested last month in connection with a forgery case in Daly City entered pleas of guilty to the charge in the court of Judge Buck yesterday. Fava was arrested on December 28 by Sheriff McGrath and a posse in Redwood City. Bella was arrested on the same day in San Francisco by Under- sheriff Farrell and Deputy Sheriff Maloney.

Two other prisoners plead guil- ty to a charge of burglary at the same time in the court of Judge Buck. They were George E. Pal- mer and Ed C. Reams, arrested in Burlingame by Chief of Police Harper of that city in connection with the robbery of several stores.

Pescadero Youths Get Light Sentence

Justice should be temptred with discretion in the opinion of Judge Geo. H. Buck, who this week dis- pensed light sentences to four youths of Pescadero, who were found guilty of committing a ser- ies of robberies throughout the county. Those found guilty were Loren McCormick, 21; Lloyd Locke, 20; Wilbur Stevens, 20; and Claude McCormick, 20.

The four youths were sen- tenced to terms of four months each in the county jail. Judge Buck in sentencing the youths, stated that he could send them to San Quentin for the offenses for which he was sentencing them to jail, but he believed that more could be accomplished for their redemption by a short jail sen- tence than by a term in the peni- tentery.

Time Grows Short For License Purchase

SACRAMENTO, January 11 — At least one million California motorists have either applied for or have received their 1928 blue and gold license plates, the di- vision of motor vehicles estimat- ed today.

The estimate is based on mail and counter business handled in the Sacramento office and reports received by Chief Clerk Lon W. Butler from the branch offices lo- cated in San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles, San Diego and Fres- no. This is approximately two- thirds of the total number of re- newals expected during the per- iod.

With less than three weeks left in which to complete the reg- istrations, Butler announced a "speeding up" of work schedules in all the offices designed to give greater assistance to the public and to facilitate the work so that the "no-extensions" order issued by Chief Frank G. Snook can be rigidly applied at midnight of January 31st.

Effective, at once, the forces of all the offices will work until 5 o'clock each day except Saturday. The usual half holiday on Satur- day will be dispensed with, the offices closing at 4 o'clock on this day.

Division officials repeated their warning that motorists should lose no time in forwarding their ap- plications for new plates. A double fee will be charged after January 31st and officers will have orders to stop any car without the new plates.

They also advised motorists to forward their applications and fee directly to the Sacramento office by mail rather than to take the time to get the plates over the counters.

Biggs—Approximately $100,000 worth of turkeys will be shipped from here before February 15.

SWEENY RANCH SOLD BY DANIEL STAFFORD

Sale of Big Tract to be Followed by Industrial Development of Bay Frontage on Proposed Bay Shore Highway

The sale of the Sweeny ranch this week to a group of investors from the southern part of the state marked the week's big deal in realty. The property which was purchased last year by D. R. Stafford of this city consists of 525 acres of desirable property ad- jacent to the Dumbarton bridge and traversed by the proposed route of the Bay Shore highway.

The new owners expect to in- vest a large amount in improve- ments of the property, including streets, sewers and other conven- iences before it is subdivided and placed again on the market. The property consists of 7000 feet of frontage on the route of the Bay Shore road, and this will be open- ed for sale first. The property east of this road will be laid out for industrial sites and that west of the road will be used as resi- dential lots. Deeds for the right- of-way through the property for the Bay Shore road will be for- warded to the state highway com- mission.

In subdividing this tract, the new owners expect to tie-up their industrial sites with a great bay development scheme which they will promote. They have already several prospective industries which they hope to locate on this property.

In speaking of this deal yester- day, Daniel Stafford said, "I con- sider this one of the biggest things for Redwood City that has ever happened. These people have lots of money behind them, and are experienced in this type of enterprise. They are enthusias- tic about this section, and forsee big developments ahead for the bay district. This is a big thing. You cannot emphasize that point too much."

The Roosevelt Pioneer Club of Redwood City played in the finals of the Y. M. C. A. Pioneer Bays' Football League on Saturday against the Buffalo Bill Pioneers of Burlingame. The final score was 18 to 0 in favor of the Buf- falo Bills. It was a case of a heavy team outweighing the Redwood City boys close to 15 pounds to the man, and being able to smash holes in the lighter team's line. On the offensive the Roosevelts show- ed real class, getting away for good gains in spite of the wet field, where weight counted so much. This was the third game of the series against the Buffalo Bills, both teams having won a victory from each other in the pre- vious games.

The first step in this direction was tak- en by the council at a meeting Monday when an Elgin street sweeper was purchased. Arrested in San Jose Monday, C. P. Nichols was brought to this city Tuesday and lodged in jail on a charge of manslaughter, result- ing from the death here last Aug- ust of James Jenson, Jr., of San Francisco, following a highway crash. Nichols was arrested on a warrant sworn to by the father of the boy last October. The po- lice have been searching for Nich- ols since that time, but were only able to locate him this week. Sheriff's Office Stages County-wide Raids

Violators of the Wright Act in all parts of the county were taken in raids conducted during the week by Sheriff J. J. McGrath and deputies of his office this week. On Monday evening the sheriff and his deputies conducted seven raids in various parts of the coun- ty. The proprietor of each of the places raided was placed un- der arrest and whatever liquor was found was confiscated.

Those taken in the Monday night raids were John Oliver, 34, Menlo Park; Charles Marsack, 53 of Redwood City; Bill Yount, 48, of Belmont, William O'Keefe, 35, of Beresford; Angelo Martini, 61, of Millbrae; Rinolo Pollari, 28, of Colma and Jack Resta, 49, of Beresford.

The round-up of alleged boot- leggers continued on Tuesday. When A. Firenza, restaurant keeper of Lawndale, came to the jail with bail for his partner, who had been jailed for viola- tion of the Wright Act, he found that Sheriff McGrath held a war- rant for his own arrest. He was promptly booked on the same charge.

Other booze raids resulted in the arrest of Mike Martini, son of the man arrested the night be- fore at Millbrae. He was arrest- ed in a Colma restaurant. J. D. Bijou was also arrested in Colma.

The cases of all the alleged vio- lators will be heard before Jus- tice of the Peace McAuliffe this morning.

City to Require Deposit on Meters

Following out the plan of the Redwood City real Estate Board, the water department has de- cided to require a deposit of $5.00 from new consumers, and from tenants who do not pay their water bills promptly. The sug- gestion was made by the real- tors, as many of the tenants of rented houses leave owing a water bill which the owner of the house or his agent must pay.

For some time, the department announces, there has been an ex- ceedingly high dlinquency in the collection of water bills, amount- ing at times to 75 per cent of the billing. An effort will be made to get all consumers to pay wa- ter bills within fifteen das from receipt of the bill. It is provided by ordinance that the meter may be removed if the bill is not paid within the time specified. The department has announced its in- tention of using this provision if necessary. Patrons will be warn- ed upon the 15th of the month if bills are not paid, and the meter will be removed about the 20th.

The water bills hereafter will be sent out on postal cards, ef- fecting a saving of $300 a year in money as well as considerable time in mailing. The department asks the co-operation of the public in maintaining the cost of this service at a minimum.

These compared with 4,763 incorporation papers filed in 1926 on which $388,960 was collected. The 1924 document total was 5,070 and that of 1925 was 4,863.

Governor C. C. Young, whose commission now is investigating California's tax system, has been invited by J. W. Wheeler, president of the Pacific Northwest Real Estate Association, to sit in on a tax equalization meeting in Portland on January 12 and 13. Wheeler also has asked Alexander R. Heron, director of finance and a member of the tax commission, to attend the session and to address it on California's tax problems. The conference is to be attended by representatives from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana.

Military records, militia orders and other documents and newspaper articles dealing with the early days of San Francisco were presented to the State Library at Sacramento last week in the form of two scrap books saved from the San Francisco Armory by Adjutant General R. E. Mittelstaedt during the 1906 fire. The documents date back to 1854, covering activities of Company B, First Regiment, known as the "San Francisco City Guard." This unit, the second militia organization in the state, is now Battery F, 250th Coast Artillery, San Francisco.

The prohibition proverb, "A still a day keeps liquor away," was executed at better than 100 per cent during 1927, according to figures released last week by E. R. Bohner, prohibition administrator. Instead of holding to one still each day, Northern California enforcement officers raided 377 stills, ranging in value, plus accessories, from $1,000 to $100,000.

The University of California is given high rank in the field of science in the latest compilation of graduates and faculty members of the various universities who have achieved fame in these branches of learning made by the editors of "American Men of Science." It shares second place on the list with the University of Chicago in the number of leading scientists produced and eighth place where both graduate and bachelor degrees are considered.

A movement for a pilgrimage of America's "Gold Star" mothers, as guests of the Federal Government, to the military cemeteries of Europe, where their sons lie buried, was endorsed at Sacramento by Governor C C. Young last week. In a letter to James W. Foxall of West Chester, Penn., chairman of the "Gold Star" Mothers' Pilgrimage, Governor Young said he knew no better way" of signifying to these mothers that the country has not forgotten their supreme sacrifice.

The net cost of California's state government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1927—the last year of the Richardson budget regime—was $85,247,963.26, an increase of $2,412,711.93 over the previous year. In his annual statement on governmental costs, State Controller Ray L. Riley last week announced total expenditures of $113,083,473.14 for the last fiscal period and indicated the deductions for transfers, revolving funds and similar items which give the actual net cost of state business.

Recommendations for the retirement of twenty-six veteran California teachers have been approved by the state board of education in session at Sacramento. In the matters of years of service, Janette Ephrain of San Francisco heads the list. She has taught in the San Francisco public schools for fifty-one years, and Mary E. Crowley, also of San Francisco, has forty-nine years to her credit. Other retirements include those of William M. Hyman of Woodland, thirty years, and Ivy Ethel Eldredge of Chico, fifteen years.

Armed with a supply of booklets sixteen inches tall, depicting scenes of San Francisco and bearing a title of "California, the State That Saved Woodrow Wilson in 1916," five San Francisco committeemen left last week for Washington, D. C., in an effort to bring the Democratic convention next summer to San Francisco. The booklets were arranged and published by the San Francisco Convention and Tourist League, and were given the full approval of H. H. McPike, chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee.

The California bar's committee on bar examinations met in San Francisco last week to elect officers and set dates for the next examinations. George H. McNoble of Stockton was elected chairman and A. G. Tasheira of Oakland and John K. Biby of Los Angeles, vice chairmen. Frederick W. Kant was continued as secretary. Dates set for bar examinations were: Preliminary, February 25th, at San Francisco, and February 27th, at Los Angeles; February 28th and 29th, oral examinations at San Francisco and Los Angeles; March 1st and 2nd, written examinations at San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Bulletins instructing all branch offices of the division of motor vehicles that no extension of time will be granted any California motorist who fails to make application for his 1928 license plates before January 31 were issued at Sacramento last week by Frank G. Snook, chief of the division. No person, no matter what his excuse, will be permitted to avoid payment of the 100 per cent penalty if his application is not placed in the mails before midnight of that date, the bulletin said.

Direct ferry service between San Francisco and San Rafael is proposed by the Golden Gate Ferry Company, which filed an application last week with the State Railroad Commission for permission to operate such a line. A. O. Stewart, president of the ferry company, declared the innovation is "in line with our policy of seeking out for motorists the shortest and most direct routes of ingress and egress over San Francisco Bay."

What is believed to be California's second volcano was discovered near Alturas recently by forest rangers on exploration cruises into the interior of the Modoc National Forest in Modoc county. A series of steam vents and boiling pumice flats on the summit of Glass mountain was discovered by J. D. Howard of Klamath Falls, who found the vents from which steam could be seen issuing and from which rose a distinctly sulphuric odor.

The state highway commission will make a complete allocation of funds accruing to the state under the additional 1 cent gasoline tax during the remainder of the biennium, to the primary and secondary roads of California, at its meeting to be held in Sacramento January 12. This is the announcement by Bert B. Meek, state director of public works. The allocation must have the endorsement of the governor before it becomes final. New construction funds from the third cent in the gas tax are expected by state officials to exceed $9,000,000.

The state government has invested $18,049,834.84 in farms and homes for former service men in the last six years, it was announced recently in a report issued by George M. Stout, secretary of the State Veterans' Welfare Board. Funds from sale of veterans' bonds, to be retired as the former service men pay for the property, have been used to purchase 3,624 homes and 211 farms, Stout said. Farm and home purchases in the three leading counties total as follows: Los Angeles, $6,272,180; Alameda, $2,959,515; San Francisco $1,850,475.

Modern-Day Tapestry Called Work of Art

Australia lost its most patient and painstaking man recently when San Salvador Alfred Case died in Melbourne. The monument to his perseverance was a piece of tapestry 6 feet 2 inches long and 5 feet wide, depicting Mary Queen of Scots mourning over the dying Douglas at the battle of Langside in 1658. Case worked into this tapestry 2,034,004 stitches. It took two years to make, and he spent from three to eight hours each day on the picture. As a work of art, the tapestry is outstanding, for although Case had no artistic training, the picture is said to be technically perfect. Colors were chosen and blended correctly. There are nine figures, two horses and a dog in the picture. The background consists of a tree, a castle and a battlefield. All the figures are lifelike—the look of anguish on the queen's face, the anxious attitude of the dog and the emotions of the others in the group are plainly discernible.

LET'S KEEP OUT—WE DON'T BELONG

THE proper function of government, according to our idea of the matter, is to make one's country a safe and pleasant place to live. This done, it is to one's interest to live there and invest money there. But if an indivdual of one country choses rather to live and invest his money under the government of a foreign nation, or goes to convert the people of another nation to his belief, whether right or wrong, then that individual should according to all fairness be content to live under such manner of protection as that government can provide.

An instance of this is now at hand in Nicaragua. We believe that it is a grave mistake for this country to meddle with the domestic affairs of Nicaragua or any other American state. The United States should guard the interests of its citizens, but to make these interests the excuse to invade another country and kill its citizens; to overthrow, or cause the overthrow of one government or to maintain another government in control against the will of even a minority of the citizens of that nation is an assumption of right totally unwarranted.

When American capitalists invest in Mexico and South America they know the conditions which prevail in these countries; that the governments are at best unstable. This is a chance which they must take in return for the large returns upon their investments which they expect to receive. This being the case, it would seem to us that they and they alone, should take the consequences should a revolution occur.

THE COMING OF THE AIRPLANE

THE airplane industry is being developed just as were railroads and automobiles. It takes pioneering, courage and faith in the project.

Twenty years ago the conservative individual wouldn't ride in an automobile. Today, he won't ride in an airplane. But the fact remains that automobiles are as common today as bath tubs.

Most people do not realize that well established air lines are handling mail, passengers and express over our whole nation. They operate on schedule up and down the Pacific Coast, in the Rocky Mountain states, through to Chicago and east.

These lines have all had to develop under adverse conditions just as did the first railroads and the first automobiles. The pioneering planes have had vast distances of mountains, timber and deserts to cover, with landing fields few and far between, without guilding lights and with other innumerable obstacles to contend wth. Only men with the pioneering spirit would attempt to surmount such difficulties.

In gong from San Francisco to Chicago by plane, a recent passenger said that he felt entirely comfortable, relaxed as he would in any easy chair in his own parlor, and enjoyed the varying scenery which could not be observed in any other manner. He said there was no feeling of instability, and when he was tired he took a nap. Wonderful scenery was encountered and even herds of antelope and other wild life were visible. The time required was 21 hours from San Francisco to Chicago.

COUNTRY WANTS SOUND PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER

PRESIDENTIAL elections used to be accompanied by business disturbances that sometimes reached the catastrophe stage. Business faced the presidential year with the trepidation of a man on his way o a pagan holiday; not knowing if he was to be stabbed, burned, hanged, or eaten.

This year, there is small likelihood of financial or social upheaval.

The people are no longer unadvised about fundamental business and economic principles. They will demand that the next president be a safe, dependable man who can carry on a program of businesslike economy in government and who will keep government a controllable, dependable machine instead of a hare-brained political madhouse, always ready to sacrifice national prosperity for political expediency.

The next president might bear almost any political label if he thinks and acts along common sense lines.

THINK THIS OVER

"If every man and woman in the country," says James H. Emery, Counsel for National Association of Manufacturers, speaking to the National Grange, "realized that they are working between six weeks and two months of every year to meet state, local and national taxes, we would soon develop a tax consciousness necessary for a reduction in our states and communities."

LIGHT FOR BOTH

Peach-planting Ban Is Attacked by Crittenden

By ESTO BROUGHTON

SACRAMENTO, January 12 — California's sun-kissed peaches, clinging or free, will not become wall-flowers in the garden of trade if they are handled properly, according to Assemblyman B. B. Crittenden of Tracy.

The peach-planting ban proposed by Senator J. M. Inman of Sacramento, is being attacked by Crittenden as oposed to the best interests of the state's fruit growers.

"Pulling up the cling peaches or limiting the planting by law as Inman suggests means that the farme acknowledges for a certainty that he will make nothing on the land devastated," declareded the assemblyman.

It is far better for the farmer to produce more aboundant crops in a more efficient manner in Crittenden's opinion than to cut down his production and admit failure. Reducton of costs is the meat of the remedy he proposed for the help of farmers generally and the peach man particularly.

Admitting the terrific losses this year when the value of the peach crop dropped from a return of $21,099,000 in 1926 to only $10,675,000. The Tracy solon contends that the permanent remedy for this depression is better quality and better marketing methods.

"There is an adequate market in the world for our products if we will go after it," the legislator insists, and he knows something about a farmer's troubles since he farms himself in San Joaquin and Merced counties between lawmaking seasons.

"The immediate "first aid" for the "sick peach-grower." Crittenden prescribes is the higher development of cooperative marketing methods. "We should create a taste and desire for our products in all the markets of the world" Crittenden asserts. "It is up to the California farmer through effective advertising and good sales arrangements to bring our products and the potential buyer together."

The solon likens the Inman proposal to pull up the cling peach trees to the panic which first greeted the cotton gin, and predicts that the marketing conditions of other countries will soon become adjutsed to the great California production and absorb our crops easily.

Good quality and cheapness are the open sesame to good markets the legislator-farmer says, emphasizing how this state can excel in both. If on the other hand to keep prices high, Californians limit production, they will withdraw our products from the marts of trade and other countries will immediately supply them and much of our land will remain permanently nonproductive, he points out.

The only justification of the Inman proposal to put peach planting under the regulation of the Railroad Commission, or some similar body, from the farmers' point of view would be if the state were prepared to guarantee to the farmer a fair return upon his investment, Crittenden declares.

"The state by its regulation of public utilities and banks has to a large extent, eliminated competition and as to public utilities, has set rates whereby the large public utilities are enjoying increased economic stability and fair returns," explains the Tracy Assemblyman.

"Now, the state should not impose any further burden upon the farmer," Crittenden contends, "until it is willing to eliminate competition, protect his markets and assure him of reasonable returns upon his investment and expenditures, including taxes."

Although he rejected the Inman regulation plan, Crittenden has several concrete suggestions of ways the state might aid the farmer.

"The state should go out aggressively to develop and find a place in the markets of all nations for our products," he said "And the state should also find needed money for the farmer at no higher rate of interest than public utilities pay. Investments in agriculture should be improved so that they are attractive."

PACIFIC COAST PROSPERITY

Seen by Industry Chief

In a summary of the outlook for motor travel and the motor business for 1928, Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, traces a large share of the prosperity of California to the superior tansportation facilities this state affords. Writing in the current issue of "Motor Land," Pacific Coast magazine of motoring, published by the California State Automobile Association, this authority on the automobile industry points to the definite connection between the development of population in the Pacific Coast states and the sound basis of motor transport that has accompanied this development.

The more than 46,000 miles of surfaced highways in California, Oregon and Washington, Reeves comments, have made possible the tremendous growths in automobile registration and the large development of bus systems. This section of the country is more actively served by motor bus routes than any other, he adds, and California has led the way in development of the modern motor coach. Continuing, Reeves writes: "The good highways in this region have also made it possible to use a large number of commercial vehicles which serve as feeders to the rail lines and to some degree for long distance trips. California is the second largest user of motor trucks in the United States, being exceeded only by New York, which has a population two and one-half times as large.

"Another factor in which the West has been a leader is in the number of cars per capita, with one automobile for every three persons in California, for every four in Oregon, and for every five in the state of Washington. The standard of automobile ownership is not on the basis of one per family, but on the ratio of one for every adult.

"On the Pacific coast, where the standard of living is high, where roads are good, where motor transport is usually essential for the adequate conduct of business, use of automobile by all members of the family came quickly.

"The Pacific Coast is likely to hold its leadership in this respect. Success begets success. Investment in motor transport is daily returning service to the owners so that the productivity of the indivdual ability is enhanced and the purchasing power of the community improved."

Deer Plentiful Throughout State

19,507 Deer Slaughtered During Season in California

By CLEM WHITAKER

SACRAMENTO, January 12 — California hunters brought home the venison in convincing fashion during 1927, Fred G. Stevenot, director of the State Department of Natural Resources, disclosed today.

In the state as a whole, 19,607 deer were brought down during the season, with Siskiyou county leading as the state's happiest happy hunting ground.

Stevenot's report, based on a check-up of deer tags just completed by the Division of Fish and Game, a branch of his department, revealed that only two counties—Sacramento and San Francisco—failed to yield a buck to some lucky huntsman.

In Siskiyou, the top county, 1,665 deer were bagged; Mendocino county was a close second with a total bag of 1,475 and Trinity was third with 921.

Computed on a territorial basis, however, "Marvelous Marin" was the leading county, with 367 deer brought down in an area of 529 square miles. On the otehr hand, San Bernardino, California's biggest county in area, produced only 74 bucks for hunters who ranged over its 20,175 square miles.

Los Angeles county, the state's greatest metropolitan area, also ranked as one of the leading hunting grounds during 1927, standing eighteenth among the 58 counties in deer killed, with a total of 425. Alameda county had the next biggest kill for an urban county with 220 bucks for the season, while San Diego followed with 169.

While Northern California produced most of the deer killed during the season, hunters in some of the northern counties were forced to leave their county borders to get their bucks. In Solano county, for instance, only 45 deer were brought down, while Yuba county netted only 53 and neighboring Sutter only one.

Glenn and Shasta counties, two of the banner deer counties, ran a neck-and-neck race for 1927 honors, Glenn winning out by placing eleventh among the 58 counties with 623 bucks to its credit. Shasta won twelfth position with 612 as its "kill."

Santa Clara county, though thickly settled in parts and classed as urban territory, forged into nineteenth place as a deer county with a season total of 397. Adjoining San Mateo county, however, reported only 77 deer killed.

Placer county edged out Lassen by a good margin in the hunting marathon, with 341 bucks bagged as against 296 in Lassen. Colusa county next in line, reported a "kill" of 263, ranking twenty sixth among the deer counties.

Tulare, champion deer hunting area of the San Joaquin Valley, ended the season with 744 deer in the bag, or ninth position in the state as a whole. Stanislaus, judged from the report, prefers raising melons to deer, as only 91 bucks were shot uring the season there. Merced also failed to do much for its hunters, its deer total being but 67.

Siskiyou, Mendocino, Trinity, Lake, Humboldt and Tehema, in the order named, were the leading deer counties of the north, while in the south, Santa Barbara, Los Angeles, Riverside and Ventura were the only good hunting areas.

State Grants One Divorce for Each Two Marriages

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, January 10—California's matrimonial inventory for 1927 revealed today that there was evidently a slipknot in Cupid's bow with one divorce recorded for every two marriages contacted during the year.

Although the divorce statistics are not completed yet for the past year, preliminary estimates indicate that they will exceed the 1926 grand total of 12,000 which represented a gain of 2,000 over the figures of the preceding year.

The marriage total approximated 20,000 for 1927 according to statistics being prepared by the state bureau of vital statistics.

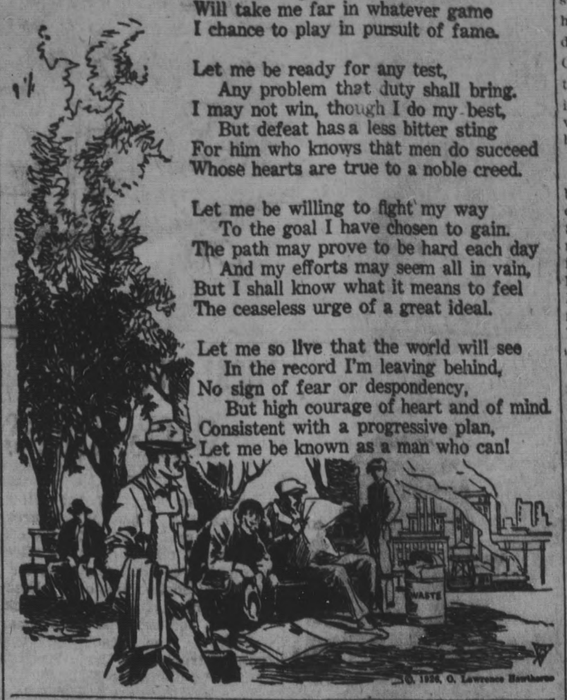
A MAN WHO CAN

by O. LAWRENCE HAWTHORNE



Let me be known as a man who can—
As a man who is eager to try!
I may not finish what I began,
But the spirit of do-it-or-die
Will take me far in whatever game
I chance to play in pursuit of fame.

Let me be ready for any test,
Any problem that duty shall bring.
I may not win, though I do my best,
But defeat has a less bitter sting
For him who knows that men do succeed
Whose hearts are true to a noble creed.

Let me be willing to fight my way
To the goal I have chosen to gain.
The path may prove to be hard each day
And my efforts may seem all in vain,
But I shall know what it means to feel
The ceaseless urge of a great ideal.

Let me so live that the world will see
In the record I'm leaving behind,
No sign of fear or despondency,
But high courage of heart and of mind.
Consistent with a progressive plan,
Let me be known as a man who can!

30 Years AGO

Times-Gazette, Jan. 8, 1898

District Deputy W. W. Brown of Oak Grove installed the officers-elect of Bay View Lodge I. O. O. F. Wednesday evening. Speech making followed the installation.

J. D. Bennett, the jewler, has returned to Redwood City, this time to stay. It has been his custom to winter here and tour the mines of the northern part of the state during the summer. He thinks Redwood good enough for him, and has opened a store at Hilson's.

Today Harvey Kincaid, a former attorney of Redwood City, comes down from San Francisco and will begin practice with his son, Archer. He has been engaged in doing brief work and looking up authorities for Sullivan & Sullivan of that city. Mr. Kincaid left here about thirteen years ago and has since been engaged in the practice of his profession. At one time he was a law partner of E. F. Fitzpatrick of this city. He was known as a lawyer of ability and his clients were among the best people of this county.

Blingum is forsaken. Of all the tony folks up there, Dick Tobin is the only one who sheds the light of his countenance upon the country side. The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker mourn for customers, and the depot at train time looks like banquet halls deserted.

The Hollingshead boys have almost completed arrangements for a journey to the Yukon. They will spend a few weeks at Woodside, and then leave for the gold fields. It is not known how many will be in the party. It is said Tom Kelly of Portola, another of the lucky Klondikers, will be among the party.

CLASSES ARRANGED FOR STORY WRITING

Write Your Dream Story into A Fiction Story at U. C. Extension Class

Everyone who has lived has lived short stories, dozens of them, that might have been published in a short story magazine.

But few have written compared with the millions who have dreamed. It has been because they lacked the knowledge of "how to write the acceptable story."

It has been the same with stories of travel, of news, good news for the papers. Those stories never "got over" because the one who knew them or lived them did not know how to write them.

Now the University of California Extension is arranging classes in short story writing, travel story and other types of feature story writing and newspaper writing, to be conducted by Gilbert G. Weigle, San Francisio writer who has successfully conducted similar classes for a number of years.

The news and feature story writing classes will meet next Tuesday evening at 7 and 8 o'clock at room 102 in the new extension building at 540 Powell street, and the short story writing classes, for beginners and advanced students, at 7 and 8 o'clock Wednesday evening. They will meet thereafter once a week.

The classes are open to the public. Interested persons are invited to visit the classes or may registered now. Full particulars may be had by telephoning Kearny 100 extension headquarters.

Initiative and the Telephone!

A Pacific Coast paper dealer received a surprise shipment of 800 bundles of tray paper [for drying grapes] which had not been ordered. This resourceful dealer quickly turned the supplier's error to good account.

Telephone calls to customers in nearby towns disposed of the entire shipment and one hundred additional bundles for later delivery—gross sales $4500.00.

Successful sales campaigns now consider the telephone—the rapid, convenient, economical, personal means of communication with customers in and out of town and a sales force of proven merit.

"When you call the trade by telephone they know you have something worth while to say".

State Teachers' College Made Four Year Course

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, January 11—Whether the degree of Bachelor of Arts to be granted at the State Teachers' Colleges after 1930 following a four-year course will make old maids of California's school teachers or not was not determined by the State Board of Education last week when they decided to lengthen the teaching course.

At least by adding a year of training the Board has insured the state of older and wiser teachers in the future.

Youth Delinquency Prevention Aim of Welfare Workers

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, January 12—California youth is growing better and better according to Ms. Anna L. Saylor, state diector of social welfare, who cites the latest report of A. C. Astredo, San Francisco probation officer, showing that the number of boys and girls passing through that city's detention home during 1927 was 121 less than for the previous year.

Automobiles and dance halls were blamed by the woman director as the causes of most juvenile delinquency. She is urging the locking of parked cars and supervision of public dance halls to protect young people from these temptations.

LOCAL HI-Y CLUB ELECTS OFFICERS

At the meeting of the Hi-Y Club at the Episcopal church Tuesday evening the following officers were elected to hold office during the coming semester: Arville Whitehead, president; Fred Kalenborn, vice-president; Jack Johnson, secretary; Ed Williams, treasurer. The outgoing officers were instructed by the president, Arthur Lampkin, to have all reports o nhand at the next meeting and all records in shape so that the new officers can come into office at the next meeting.

A membership committee made up of the out-going officers was appointed.

D. W. Williams told the boys of his experience in his tour to Europe and the Holy Land. The boys were very much interested and asked Mr. Williams to come again and tell them more about it.

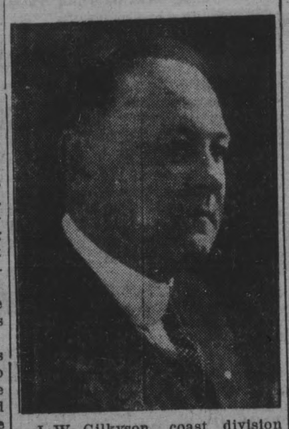
J. W. Gilkyson Presented Gold Service Emblem



J. W. Gilkyson, coast division commercial manager for the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company has just completed his fortieth year in its service, marked by the presentation of a six starred, gold service emblem, which distinguishes him as one of the pioneers in telephone circles of the Pacific Coast. Gilkyson has been associated with many of the foremost developments of telephony in California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho, since he began his chosen career, in 1887, in San Francisco.

Notable among Gilkyson's achievements was his handling of the change from magneto to express type central office equipment in Spokane, in 1908; an accomplishment of considerable magnitude in those days. Later he surveyed the route for the present long distance telephone lines from the Tehachapis to Los Angeles. Among numerous other activities in Pacific Coast telephone expansion, Gilkyson participated in the opening of the transcontinental telephone lines in 1915; his activities centering from San Francisco.

Gilkyson, at various times, has been located in managerial and executive capacities in San Jose, 1900-1903; Fresno, 1903-1905; San Francisco, 1907-1909; Los [illegible] 1910; and [illegible] 1912 to the present positions.

THE PROBLEM OF APPENDICITIS

By Arthur O. Hart, M. D.
St. Johns, Mich.
Member Gorgas Memorial

Physicians are often asked, "What is the functon of the appendix?" The only answer that can be given is that it has no known function except to cause trouble. It is the organ most subject to disease in the abdomen. It oftimes can empty itself only with difficulty and has a blood circulation that is interfered with very easily. It constantly contains material swarming with bacteria, many of which can cause disease and, whenever it is unable to empty easily or its circulation is lessened, the lining membrane loses its normal resistance and is easily penetrated by the bacteria.

There is an old saying that "Disease always settles in the weakest part" and, as the appendix is the weakest organ in the human abdomen, any irritation of the bowels is very liable to cause inflammation of the appendix.

In one county of our state which has nearly 25,000 population, there were, in 1925, about 96 cases of appendicitis, with 17 deaths—a heavy loss. A careful investigation revealed that proper and early surgical treatment would have saved most of these lives.

There is no medicinal treatment that will cure appendicitis or in any way influence it for the better, although rest in bed and no food or physic will result in a majority of cases, in temporary recovery only to await future attacks. An appendix once diseased is always diseased. The only successful treatment for the diseased appendix is its surgical removal and, if this is done during the first twenty-four hours of the first attack, the loss will be less than one per cent. Surgical treatment later in the attack and during succeeding attacks may show a higher mortality rate. The next safest time to remove the appendix is three or four weeks after the acute attack and will result in a loss of less than one per cent for those who recover from the acute attack.

The safest thing to do, when taken with a pain in the abdomen, is to call your physician at once, abstain from food and physic and, if he finds that you have appendicitis, go to the hospital and have it removed. If taken with appendicitis under circumstances which render it impossible to do this, take no food nor physic, stay in bed and, if fortunate enough to get over the attack, take only light or liquid food for two or three weeks, then go to your surgeon and have the appendix removed. If all could be persuaded to follow this course, the loss from this disease woud drop to less than one in a hundred.

Most of the bad results are due to failure to call the physician early or to follow his advice when he is called. The hospital is by far the safest place to treat appendicitis.

THE VISION OF GORGAS

By Mark L. Emerson, M. D.
Oakland, Calif.
Member Gorgas Memorial

Major-General Gorgas was a man who went to places that were so filthy and unhealthy that no one could live there. He made them so beautiful and wonderful that now everybody wants to go and see them.

This does not apply only to cleaning up the yellow fever plague and making the Panama Canal possible, but it applies all over the world wherever Major-General Gorgas went—in every institution, home, or hamlet.

The vision of Major-General Gorgas was such an inspiration to others that everyone who grasped the idea was trying to do likewise.

About twenty years ago, at the school for the deaf and blind at Berkeley, Cal., there was an epidemic of small-pox. Thirty-six children were smitten with the dread disease. Since then, every child who comes to the institution is vaccinated on the day he enters, and from that time to this there has not been another case of small-pox.

Every year there would be an average of five or six cases of diptheria, with an occasional death. Six years ago all the children were tested in order to see if they could get diptheria. It was found that twenty-six of these children were immune and would not get diptheria even if they were exposed to it. However, a majority of the three hundred were still capable of getting it. So all the children were rendered immune against diptheria, and since then there has not been another case of diptheria in the school.

Such preventive measures were the vision of Major-General Gorgas.

Major-General Gorgas was buried from St. Paul's Cathedral with representatives of the king and queen of England in attendance, and his bier was followed through the streets by a riderless horse. All this was a mark of the highest esteem for this American by the British government.

Food for Thought

What is the definition of a sure-thing?

Something you can bank upon! For instance:

Can you always bank upon having good health? Well, hardly.

And yet, uncertainties in matters of health, are of all things the most harmful. It is easy to see why. Because any reduction in normal health tends to affect all other interests.

Health has a vital bearing on everything we do. Its importance cannot be over-emphasized.

The CHIROPRACTOR COMES TO YOU WITH A STRAIGHTFORWARD PROPOSITION FOR SAFEGUARDING YOUR HEALTH. Something in the nature of a sure-thing. He can give you the nearest guarantee to good health that it is possible for science to do.

Considering the above statements in a broad and serious way, does it not appear wise to look into the claims of this great Drugless Scence?

In the long run, and in its best sense CHIROPRACTIC is a sure-thing that you can depend upon.

Will you make it your business to find out why, at once?

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

IDLE ISLAND

By ETHEL HUESTON

Copyright 1927 by The Bobbs-Merrill Co. WNU Service

STORY FROM THE START

On the verge of nervous collapse, due to overwork, Gay Delane, successful New York artist, seeks rest at Idle Island. She rents a cottage, the "Lone Pine," from an island character, the "Captain," and his sister, Alice Andover, "administrator." Gay finds the cottage is tenanted by an elderly lady, "Auntalmiry," who consents to move to another abode, the "Apple Tree." Awaking from sleep, Gay imagines she sees the face of a Chinaman peering in the window. On an exploration of the island Gay, standing on the seashore, is horrified by the appearance of the drifting body of a drowned man, which she nerves herself to bring to the shore. A bullet wound in the temple shows the man to have been murdered. Gay makes her way to the "Captain" with the story. Returning with him to the shore, they find no body there, and Gay's story of the incident is set down to an attack of "nerves." Gay, unable to convince her neighbors of the truth draws a picture of the face of the dead man, intending to send it to the authorities. She meets a stranger, apparently another visitor, to whom she tells the story and shows the picture. He asks her to let him take it, but Gay refuses. Next day, after a night spent with "Auntalmiry," Gay finds the picture has been taken from the cottage. "Rand" Wallace, wanderer, and considered something of a "black sheep," by the Islanders, expecting to find "Auntalmiry," surprises Gay at household tasks. She likes him at once.

The days flew away like enchanted things. Gay had never been so happy, although she neglected her sacred canvases and brush. How could she work with Rand sprawling in the window-seat at her side, brown hand touching her hand, gray eyes holding her eyes? Every day he worked faithfully on the Bo's'n, Bemis' yacht, worked very hard for a few hours to spare himself more time to be with her, appearing at the Lone Pine every morning promptly at eleven o'clock, the hour of her late breakfast, which was breakfast and luncheon in one.

"So this is how one lives on nothing a year," she said to him one day, laughing. "Well, I am relieved. I know at least that you will never starve."

The next morning he handed her a pound of the best coffee obtainable at the Pier grocery store. He was very haughty. "I may be low, but I have my pride," he said. "My coffee! And when it is gone, kindly notify me. More will be forthcoming."

"Don't forget the electricity," she reminded him gayly. "It must be a nickel a week."

And laughingly she accepted the dingy coin he selected carefully from a handful to give her.

Every day he went up the slope to the Lone Pine at sunset, that sweetest hour of the day, and sat with her in the window-seat on the west, looking down to the bay where the sky burned with fresh-blown gold and flame and amethyst, burned fiercely for a while before it paled to smoking embers, pastel shades of rose and violet and cream. And when the embers had faded to gray ash, they went into the woods, and walked up and down beneath the trees that gossiped to one another above them, and breathed deeply of the intoxicating spices of the forest—pine, and spruce, and fir.

At that hour they never talked, but wandered slowly here and there, stumbling sometimes over the twisted old roots of trees or fallen logs, sliding over treacherous rocks, holding hands like children, smiling at each other.

One night they lingered long in the forest, so that dusk was blackening the shadows when they turned up behind the Little club, in that pathless bit of the wood. As they went on, laughing softly, and stumbling, suddenly, without a sound, they came up to one who was walking toward them, swiftly, surely, toward the shore.

All feet fall softly on the thick pillowing of pine needles and dry mosses, but those feet that came to meet them made no sound at all. As they came together, Gay looked up with keen but friendly interest to see who walked in her enchanted wood at nightfall, and then she caught her breath with a sudden startled intake.

The face that she saw in the dusk was sharply familiar, unmistakable, a thin little face that showed yellow in the gloaming, like yellow parchment, with narrow, sloping diamond eyes, and beneath one of them a faint shining mark, like a seam in the parchment, where a scar seared the flesh, the face of a yellow, little old Chinaman.

In the dusk, as she had seen it before, she saw it again, and in the fraction of a moment, the dusk received him again, noiselessly, as it had received him before.

Gay had not by any means forgotten her first night on the island: when she lay alone in the cottage on the fringe of the woods in her great exhaustion of mind and physical weariness; when, sleeping, she had seemed to feel a gaze upon her, and stirred to see, or think she saw, the thin yellow face in the gloaming; and had turned again to her sleep, saying dreamily it was but a dream. She had, however, made inquiry casually, and had been told there were no resident Chinese on the island, but that, on rare occasion, one came on errand from Portland, for the delivery of packages, perhaps, or a day's work. It was only as in a dream that she had remembered the face.

But now, with sudden fear, Gay knew it was no dream. She waited for Rand to come up to her.

"Did you—see—him?" she whispered.

"The Chink? Yes. The men must go down at the club house. They always bring some one along to cook, usually a darky, but once it was a Jap. Perhaps they're giving all nations a try by turn." Then he felt Gay's intensity in her silence, the closeness of her hand on his. "Why, Gay, what is the matter? You're not afraid of him! Don't be afraid of a Chinkie, they never harm anybody.—You afraid! A woman who lives alone, and not according to natur' and brags about it!"

Although Gay realized that the Females Wallace, as he affectionately called them, must no doubt long since have told Rand the story of the affair in the cove as they knew it, he had never referred to it by word or by suggestion. It was that innate courtesy, that delicate New England reserve, which held sacred from reference a subject that might give pain.

Now, suddenly, Gay wished he would speak of it, would ask her what she had seen, or thought she saw. She wished greatly to talk freely with him, to tell him the surprising things that had happened to her on the island.

The closeness of her clasp on his hand relaxed. "I am not afraid," she said easily. "I just wondered who it was."

There was no sound from the wild growth of brush that lay so thickly about them, no faintest crackle of dried, dead, crumbling needles of pine, but as Gay finished speaking, a dark shadow slipped away, almost from beneath her hand, slipped away, shadow-like, and melted with the other shadows. And neither Gay nor Rand suspected one shadow more or less among the many on either side.

Even when the Bo's'n was ready at last for the trip down the coast, Rand put off his departure as long as he could, and when further delay was impossible, he sent his bags aboard, and with all in readiness for sailing, with the two men chosen for his crew aboard, he slowly climbed the hill for a final breakfast with Gay at eleven o'clock.

Gay was very wistful, very sad. She could not eat, although the breakfast tray for two was most enticingly arrayed. Over her cup of coffee her eyes clung to Rand's eyes, very large, very deep, darkly troubled.

"Rand, please eat," she begged. "You will be very hungry before night! Eat, please eat!"

"Gay, I can't. For the first time in my life, my appetite was all filled up before I began. I hate to go and leave you. Gay, you aren't thinking of going away the first of September, are you? I will make the trip as fast as I can, but I cannot be back by the first. You wouldn't go before I return, would you?"

"There's really nothing to hurry me away," she said reasonably. "I like it here, and I do need more rest, and—they say—the weather is very nice in September."

"The weather! Are you staying for the weather?"

Gay shook her head. No—for you."

Rand stood up suddenly, and Gay, too, rose slowly. Hand in hand they crossed the pleasant room to the door that opened down upon the bay where the Bo's'n waited for Rand, to take him away.

"I kissed you when I came the first time," he said softly, "wouldn't it rather hurt your feelings if I went away—less affectionately?"

Gay nodded. "Terribly. I should think you didn't like it."

Rand took her in his arms, and kissed her, not once, but many times.

"Were you ever in love before, Rand?" Gay asked softly.

"Well—yes," he admitted hesitatingly. "Er—weren't you?"

"Well — yes," she acknowledged, smiling faintly. "But never like this, Rand, never like this."

Her cool, firm, slender fingers caressed his hair, touched his lips, cradled the curve of his chin.

"Rand," she whispered. "Rand."

At three o'clock, with smiling tremulous lips, and tears streaming down her face, but laughing, Gay stood in the highest window of the Lone Pine, and blew a kiss to the wind as Rand turned the Bo's'n east, to sea.

CHAPTER VI

With the first of September came the breaking up of the summer colony. Gay was grateful for the silence after the clamor of young voices, twanging ukuleles, whining saxophones. Adorable, waiting alone at the top of the hill, for Rand to come! If sometimes she was troubled by a vague presentiment, a prophetic suggestion that all her future life would be something like that, waiting for Rand, she stilled it resolutely. She felt that it was doubly sweet to be alone in awaiting his return, that of all the summer colony, she alone remained, waiting.

There was a point high on the rocks to the east of the Little club where she often sat by the hour, chin in hand, gazing dreamily off to sea. Rand would not return that way. He would come by fastest State-of-Maine express, but it was the way he had gone, and so intrigued her fancy.

Chin in hand, eyes misty with dreams, thoughts far away to sea in the south, she sat one day when a voice called up to her from a lower place among the rocks.

"Miss Delane! May I come up?"

Gay turned quickly, and her eyes contracted wonderingly. She smiled. It was the man she had directed to the landing on the fateful day of her discovery in the cove.

"Come up, by all means," she said cordially.

And as he came up, climbing carefully and with a caution that spoke of little custom, she gave him her hand in greeting.

"How in the world did you know my name?" she asked interestedly.

"Oh, Gay Delane! It was on your sketch book that day. Do tell me—I have wondered about it so many times—whatever came of it all? Did the police trace him? Did you ever get back the little sketch, and—"

Very briefly she told him of the disappearance of the sketch.

"Are—are you sure?" he asked doubtfully; almost, it seemed to her, quizzically. "It seems—very—well, unnatural, you know. Why, nobody knew about it— Didn't you drop the book? Couldn't it have fallen out? It seems—"

"Now, don't you think I am crazy," she said with some heat. "Everybody else does. But I am trusting you to trust me."

"I will trust you," he said quickly. "I do. It was bad luck all the way round, and I'm sorry. I wish I had taken the sketch from you by main force. I hate that you should be all alone, losing the sketch. Do you remember the hand—very fine—"

"Don't," she said. "Don't talk of it. I should have done something for that poor boy—but what could I do!"

"Don't think of it. Let's talk of something else.—Are you remaining long on the island? It seems very quiet here now. The summer people have gone, have they not?"

In spite of her best efforts, feeling the curious interest of his eyes, and his words, Gay felt her face flush for her lingering.

"I was worn out," she explained quickly, "I had to have a long rest. I shall stay a little longer—a week or two perhaps. While the weather is nice. I like it better now the summer crowd is gone. Just the nice, good, religious natives are left. And me. I like it. But I did not expect to see you here again."

"I wish I could say I had come only to see you," he said, "but I am afraid I dare not go so far. As a matter of fact, I have learned that they are anticipating rather a land boom around here in the next two or three years, and my partner and I are hoping to pick up something for a song, and sell it after a bit for a—well, a grand opera. I am scouting out the land."

"How interesting. How very interesting!" Gay stood up suddenly. "You offered me tea before, and I refused. I am bolder now. Will you tea with me? And tell me about it."

They passed back over the rocks and into the woods, skirting the Little club, in silence.

"I shall have to take a peep at some of your private papers, I think," Gay said smilingly, as she led the way into the Lone Pine. "Or shall I call you 'Say'?"

"Ingram, Ronald Ingram—I beg your pardon, I seem to feel that I know you so well I quite forgot you did not know my name."

"Well, Mr Ingram, welcome to the Lone Pine. There is something about you—something New Yorky—that makes me tingle for Times square."

They were chatting companionably over their tea, chatting of work, of aims and interests, the big things of life, when Auntalmiry came to the door. She came intentionally, knowing there was a guest; Gay knew that at once, realized it with a vague resentment, although knowing it was not like the little old woman to intrude. She was dressed for the occasion, in her best black Sunday silk, with her coral cameo at her throat. There was a flush of excitement in her cheeks, and as she stepped into the room, not glancing at Gay, she swept Ronald Ingram with an eager breathless gaze.

"Oh, Mrs. Bridges, this is Mr. Ingram," Gay said lightly. "Mrs. Bridges, for company," she explained laughingly. "Auntalmiry to all us home-folks. Sit down, Auntalmiry; tea's nice and hot."

"Yes—yes, I will." Auntalmiry sat down stiffly, her eyes still intent on the young man who had crossed the room to stand by her chair as she sank into it. And intent upon his face, the light faded suddenly from her eyes, the flush died in her cheeks. All in a moment she was smaller, older, very tired.

A little later Mr. Ingram went away with many warm and pleasant words, and with a last light lingering touch on Gay's hand. Their eyes met, understandingly, as they smiled farewell. When Gay returned to Auntalmiry she was sitting wilted slightly in the chair, and her face was sad.

"Gay, you will excuse me, won't you? For coming like that, when you had company. I saw him on the plaza—a stranger—and I thought maybe Buddy had come."

"Buddy? Do you mean Rand?"

"No, Buddy—my son, Buddy"

"Auntalmiry, your son! Have you a son? Oh, I didn't know you had a son. Why didn't you tell me?"

"Yes, Buddy, my son. I didn't tell you, dearie, because—we aren't like that. We just hold things in our hearts, sad things, and say nothing. The glad things, too, perhaps, too much. We don't scatter our feelings, good or bad; we shut them. I thought perhaps some one else had told you."

"No. No one on this island has ever mentioned your son—Buddy. I never heard of him before."

"We are like that," she said faintly. "We hold one another's secrets to ourselves. They would talk to each other—but no one would tell my—sadness—to an outsider, one who didn't belong."

"Was it a sadness, Auntalmiry, having the son?"

Auntalmiry's eyes glowed suddenly, but her voice remained mild and even. "It was heaven," she said gently. "But he went away—and never came back."

"Oh! I am sorry."

"He was a gypsy boy, Buddy, like his father. His father was a singer who came here one summer—a fine singer. But he was a gypsy. He went away, too. But I didn't mind that so much."

EASY LESSONS IN AUCTION BRIDGE

Senior's Play to a No Trump

A NO TRUMP declaration differs materially from a declared trump, and therefore the original lead often should be different. In a no trump the aim of the adversaries should be to establish their longest suit, therefore it should be led at once and any high cards in short suits should be saved as re-entry cards: that is to obtain the lead after the long suit is established.

With any three honors, or with two honors in sequence and great length (7 cards), lead high; otherwise lead fourth best. With three honors in sequence lead the top, with three not in sequence lead the top of those touching. Three honors where no two are touching (Ace, Queen, ten) is an exception and should be led fourth best.

The lead of an Ace in a no trump has a special meaning. It should be led only from a combination of high cards from which but one is lacking, and if the partner holds that one high card he is expected to play it. In other words the lead of an Ace at no trump calls upon the partner to play his highest card of that suit even though it may be the King.

If senior decides to open his partner's suit at a no trump he should lead his highest when holding any two, or when holding three without an honor as high as the Queen; but he should lead low when holding three with such an honor, or four or more. When holding a singleton in partner's suit it seldom is wise to lead it because the declarer is sure to hold so many that there is very slight possibility of establishing the suit.

This manner of leading partner's suit is for the purpose of giving the greatest amount of information and making the most of the cards held. The reason for opening with a low card when holding three or four with an honor is that often declarer's stopper for that suit may be captured in this way when it could not be if the highest of the suit were led. For example, suppose that senior holds King, ten and two small cards of junior's suit, and that declarer is depending upon the Queen and two guards to stop it.

Senior would lead low and junior would win with Ace. He would lead back a small card because senior's low lead has indicated the presence of an honor. If declarer plays low, senior would win with the ten, lead his King and capture declarer's Queen and lead his last small card to put junior in the lead to make his remaining good card or cards. If with this combination senior leads his highest card, declarer would stop the suit by taking the third trick.

Junior's Play to a Declared Trump

When senior's first lead to a trump declaration is high in his own suit, junior has a chance to indicate whether or not he would like to have the suit continued. If he has the Queen and two others, or if he has only two small ones, he naturally would like to have senior lead that suit a third time after taking the first two tricks because in the one case his Queen would probably win the third trick and in the other case a small trump could be used.

Junior can convey this information to his partner by using the convention known as the "echo" or the "high-low"—which is playing an unnecessarily high card on the first trick and a lower one on the second. For instance, suppose that senior leads the King of clubs when hearts are trump. Junior holds the Queen, seven and four, or just the seven and four. In either case he should play the seven on the first trick. If senior follows with the Ace, junior plays the four on the second trick and this reversing of the natural way of playing the two small cards constitutes the echo and says in Auction Bridge language, "Partner, please lead clubs a third time; I think I can take the trick." When senior leads the King and Ace in this way and the Queen is in dummy he ordinarily would change the suit, but if he sees that his partner echoes he would continue, and they would make an extra trick.

If senior leads low in his own suit, junior should win the trick if possible and lead back his highest card of that suit unless an honor in dummy makes it unwise to do so. If junior after winning the first trick decides to change the suit and has no good suit of his own to lead he should lead the plain suit in which dummy is the weakest. When junior leads he is leading up to dummy and so we say it always is well to lead up to weakness.

The Youngest Generation

Seven-year-old Tom had been invited to an afternoon party and his mother was coaching him carefully in party etiquette. Finally she reminded him that when it came time to leave he must tell his little host what a nice time he had had and not to forget to go to his friend's mother and say to her, too, how much he enjoyed himself.

Tom listened patiently until she had finished. Then he looked up into her face and said seriously, "Oh, say, mother, don't you know they don't do that any more?"

Old bachelors may have gotten that way through mistaken notions of themselves as well as of women. They can explain if they will. But it is very evident that having failed to embrace opportunities they have nothing left to hug but delusions.—Grit.

Huff Sees Athletic Upheaval

George Huff.

AN UPHEAVAL in college athletics is in the offing, George Huff, athletic director at the University of Illinois, has confided to Western Conference coaches at Chicago.

The upheaval will come, he said, with the announcement of the findings of the Carnegie foundations, now investigating conditions under which athletic departments of various big schools operate.

Huff's warning, voiced at a meeting of coaches, was supported by President David Kinley of the University of Illinois, who detailed the evils to which college athletes, especially football, are susceptible. Commercialism, high salaries to coaches and overexcitement, in his opinion, are overemphasized, but drinking before, after and during games was termed unfortunate, and he urged that alumni of all of the schools undertake the abolition of the offending practice.

Doctor Kinley said he understands the Carnegie investigation will furnish a list of the alleged evils of athletics without furnishing names of the offenders.

"I favor naming of all dates, places and concealing nothing. If there is anything wrong at Illinois we surely want to clean house," Doctor Kinley said.

Director Huff said the question of purity in Western Conference athletics was discussed at a meeting of coaches and directors and an agreement was reached to exchange information and determine facts on any rumors.

Dates for Olympic Try-Outs Are Made Public

The program of tryouts to determine America's representatives in the principal sports of the 1928 Olympic games at Amsterdam, Holland, includes the following:

Track and Field—Final trials at Harvard stadium, Boston, July 6-7, in conjunction with national championships; preceded by district tryouts, held not later than June 23, at New York, Dallas, Detroit, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Ore.; Lawrence, Kan.; or Iowa City, Atlanta or Birmingham, and Denver. Events on metric scale, as in Olympics.

Rowing—Final trials, July 6-7, on Schuylkill river, Philadelphia, for all seven or Olympic events and at Olympic distance of 2,000 meters.

Boxing—Final trials in conjunction with national championship at Boston, probably in May.

Wrestling—Final trials in conjunction with national championships, at Grand Rapids, Mich., late in June or first week in July.

Swimming—Final men's trial at Detroit and women's tryouts at New York, probably late in June or early in July; men's diving tryouts at San Francisco, in conjunction with national men's championships early in June. Water polo tryouts at Chicago, in conjunction with national men's indoor championships.

Gymnastics—Final trials, together with national championships, at New York in May.

Women's Track and Field—Final tryouts at New York, probably on July 7.

Marathon—Final tryouts at Boston in conjunction with annual Boston A. A. Marathon, April 19.

Tony Lazzeri Is Best of All Utility Stars

Manager Miller Huggins of the world champions says he regards Tony Lazzeri not only the most versatile but also the most valuable utility player in the majors.

Last season Lazzeri, inside of one month, played three positions in the Yankee infield, second, short and third base.

"He's admittedly the best second sacker in the league," continues Huggins, "and incidentally has no peer at short or third. He would be as outstanding at either of these positions as he is at second if he made them his choice for a regular berth."

While it isn't generally known, Lazzeri won fame in the minors as a shortstop. He was shifted to second base because New York at the time had Mark Koenig, who could play the shortstop position only.

He started as a catcher in his kid days and at some time or other has played every position on the diamond. Manager Huggins had intended to let him work one inning at each position after the pennant was cinched last season, but for some reason changed his mind.

Netters Start Early

Necessity of sending the American Davis cup team to France in July, if it survives the zone play rounds, may result in elimination play beginning on the hard clay courts at Miami Beach. John G. McKay, former executive committeeman of the United States Lawn Tennis association, said he believed members of the Davis cup committee would be favorable to an early start when weather might still be inclement in the North. Something definite is expected soon.

Win Record as Coaches but Never Played Game

Tufts has produced two outstanding football coaches who never played the game in college competition—Frank Murray, who has fashioned some remarkably fine teams at Marquette university, and Arthur Sampson, who developed the eleven that will be remembered as one of the college's greatest teams.

The success of Murray and Sampson has its parallel in baseball. Joe McCarthy, the manager of the Chicago Cubs, never played major league baseball, yet he is regarded as a good manager. Frank Seeley, manager of the old Doves, never played the game at all, yet he was a good manager. Seeley's attempts at catching a ball were ridiculous, but managers and coaches do not have to play the game. It's a case of do as I say and not as I do.

RANKS OF HURLERS TO BE HIT HARD

Unusually Large Number of Former Stars Dropped.

When the major league campaign starts next April, there will be many of the regulars of 1926 and 1927, stars of yesterday, who may be missing. While a certain percentage of the older players is expected to slip each year, the crop to drop out of the game or go to the minors during the last two years seems to be rather large, writes Henry P. Edwards in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

From the pitching ranks have departed such stars as Walter Johnson, Stanley Coveleskie, Walter Reuther, Bob Shawkey, Jess Barnes and Bullet Joe Bush, Jack Bentley, Artie Nehf, Wilbur Cooper, Rube Benton, Tom Sheehan, Rube Marquard, Alan Sothoron, Babe Adams and Walter Mails, to say nothing of Stanley Baumgartner, Fred Heimach, Joe Pate, George Murray, Joe Oeschger, Huntsinger and John Stuart.

Johnson is to manage the Newark club of the International league, while Bush, Barnes and Huntsinger are at Toledo. Bob Shawkey and Dutch Reuther were but recently released. Shawkey may come back as a coach, but Reuther is expected to sign with some Pacific Coast league club.

Many people credit Reuther and Catcher Hank Severeid with winning the 1926 pennant for the Yankees after being sold to New York by Washington. Despite that fact, neither will be with the Yanks next season, Severeid having been let out a year ago. He caught in the Coast league this year.

Major league catching veterans, however, have been hanging on. Grover Hartley went to the minors from the National league but came back to the American. Micky O'Neil, let out by three National league clubs, is in the minors.

National league first sackers to go back are Jacques Fournier, Stuffy McInnis and Jack Bentley, while Joe Harris slipped into the old circuit from the American league. Bob Knode and Jim Poole as well as Dudley Branom have gone to the minors. George Kelly, the Giants' first baseman for many years, is with the Reds but not as a first baseman.

Captain of Middies

Pennock Highest-Paid Southpaw in American

No left-hander in the American league received as much salary as Herb Pennock of the Yankees in 1927. Pennock held out for a $20,000 contract last spring and got it. He proved his value, too, not only during the American league race, but also when he let the Pirates down with three hits in the third game of the world series. Pennock retired 22 Pirates without yielding a hit.

Pennock's failure to deliver a no-hit game was due to the fact that he sat on the bench while the Yankees were prolonging their half of the seventh inning, which consumed at least 20 minutes. The noted southpaw complained of momentary stiffness in his arm when he faced the Pirates for the eighth time, which accounted for his miscue.

Grove of the Athletics, who ranked next to Pennock, drew about $7,000 for his services this year, it is said, and Walberg, his teammate, a trifle less. Shaute, Buckeye and Miller of the Indians, Zachary and Braxton of the Senators, Whitehill of the Tigers, Stewart of the Browns and Wiltse of the Red Sox, all left-handed pitchers, drew less pay than "Dutch" Ruether, the Yankees' southpaw, whose contract called for $12,000.

Australia Is Ready

G. L. Patterson, J. B. Hawkes, R. O. Cummings, H. Hopman, E. F. Moon and E. T. Rowe have informed the Australian Lawn Tennis association that they will be available for Davis cup competition if required. Pat O'Hara Wood has definitely notified his inability to take part, but several other well-known players have not yet replied. Cummings and Hopman are Sydney players; Moon is the young Queensland farmer who has beaten Patterson.

Golf Now Popular

Golf is catching on in the French provinces. Two new courses were recently opened far from Paris and off the tourist track, one at Grenoble and the other at Monfontaine, in the Meurthe and Moselle department. Until recently golf has been confined to the environs of Paris and the seaside resorts along the channel and Atlantic coasts and the Riviera, in all of which places there are large numbers of Anglo-Saxon visitors and residents who patronize the courses.

NEW WHIPPET CAR A MOTOR MARVEL

One of the sensations in the automobile world is the perfected "Whippet" produced by the Willys-Overland, Inc., and it is direct evidence that John N. Willys, president of the corporation, proposes to make good on his declaration that "there can be no monopoly in the light car field." The perfected car, and the price at which it is offered, placing it directly in competition with the lowest priced cars, has centered the eyes of the automobile industry and the motor car world in general on the enterprising Toledo manufacturer. It makes him the first manufacturer of automobiles to enter the price field heretofore exclusive to but one light car manufacturer.

The "Whippet," which has been in production for more than 18 months, holds the national fuel economy record of 43.28 miles to the gallon in a test between Los Angeles and New York City, covering a distance of 3,559 miles, under official observation of the A. A. A. In a speed test on Rockingham Speedway, Salem, N. H., a "Whippet" recently attained a speed of 71.6 miles an hour over a 50-mile route. This was officially timed.

The same engine that has accomplished these records is the power plant employed in the perfected "Whippet," now offered at the lowest price in the history of Willys-Overland.

The "Whippet" was the first light car to be equipped with four wheel brakes, setting a new trend in the light car field. The braking area of the "Whippet's" brakes is greater than any other light car.

Details of the perfected "Whippet" disclose a wider range of colors, employment of full crown fenders, a new cadet sun visor that imparts a smart military effect, and the addition of automatic windshield cleaner, rear view mirror, and a combination rear driving light and stop light. These additions make the "Whippet" the most fully equipped light car built in the four cylinder field.

Various Trades Offer Occupation to Blind

Blind men are employed in many engineering factories. In one German electrical concern, says the annual report of the National Institute for the Blind, more than one hundred sightless people are employed, while double that number are being trained.

Blindness, it is said, is no hindrance to a man looking after two or even three automatic machines. The average earning capacity of a blind operative in these works is considered to be about 80 per cent of that of a normal-sighted man.

Ninety blind persons employed in French engineering trades earn about 85 per cent of full wages. A motor factory in America employs 44 blind men, who are given the work for which they seem most competent.

Nature's Economy

Inventions during the next two or three centuries will, in the opinion of many experts, probably be in the direction of imitations of the wonderful economy and the simple, direct methods of nature. Take the electric eel as an example. Its electric organ is in no sense a storage battery, but a contrivance by which electric energy is liberated at the moment when it is required. At rest, the organ shows so small an electromotive force that a good galvanometer is required to detect it, but a sudden nervous impulse from the eel's spinal cord raises a potential of many volts, with very little heat, and so small an expenditure of matter as to defy the most expert chemist to weigh it. Fireflies, glowworms and many deep sea fishes produce light without heat, at a cost which would make the price of a wax candle an extravagant outlay.

A resident of Ohio, who had previously raised wild fowl under a federal permit, but failed to submit the required report of operations and continued to make sales and shipments without renewal of the permit, was arraigned in Federal court at Toledo, Ohio, found guilty, and fined $300 and costs.

To engage in the business of rearing and selling migratory waterfowl, says the bureau of biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, it is first necessary to obtain a permit from the secretary of agriculture and then to comply with all requirements of state law.

These requirements are made under the migratory bird treaty act regulations to protect and perpetuate migratory species of birds passing each year between the United States and Canada.

MENLO PARK

Council in Regular Session

The town council met in regular session last Tuesday night. All the members were present and also City Attorney Whitworth. The Menlo Park Sanitary Board was given permission to use the town hall the first Thursday night of each month in which to hold their meetings. The board is to pay a rental of $2.50 a month.

The chairman of the sidewalk and street commission reported that the telephone company desired to put up poles on Valparaiso avenue and others on the streets outside of the municipality. The request was made by the company at the last meeting and same was referred to the commission. The chairman was given further time to make a complete report.

Ellis reported that the lettering on the city hall windows cost $30 and the same was ordered paid. A form of warrants was adopted by the board. The council became a member of the California League of Municipalities, the membership costing $20 a year. It was stated that nearly all municipalities of the state belong to the organization.

A building ordinance was adopted regulating the building, repairs, improvements on structures and fixing fees and penalties, etc. Mrs. Mona Christensen of North Palo Alto addressed the board inviting the members to attend a meeting of the Ravenswood chamber of commerce, where the state regional planning matter is to be discussed. The council took up the license ordinance and discussed it at some length, going into the details of the rate to be fixed for all businesses in town. The average rate is to be $5 a quarter. The ordinance introduced will follow closely the one adopted by Redwood City some years ago. The revenue to be derived from the licenses will pay nearly all the expenses of the city government. The ordinance will be adopted at the next meeting of the council.

The salary of the city judge was fixed at $25 a month and that of chief of police at $100 a month and $25 a month for expenses.

Thomas Furman was given a unanimous vote for chief of police. Furman has a good record as a police officer in San Francisco. He was appointed to the police force in San Francisco in 1904. He was made a district detective on duty at the Mission police station in 1907; in 1908 he was assigned to detective headquarters; in 1909 he was placed in charge of the white slave detail, remaining in charge of that detail until the red light abatement law went into effect in 1916, when he was sent to Chinatown in charge of that detail for about one year. Later he was assigned as a second in charge of the narcotic squad, working under Captain J. J. O'Mera until the time of his retirement in 1920, since which time he has resided near Emerald Lake in this county. Furman is a particular friend of Chief O'Brien.

L. H. Cook, a former electrician of this city and now teaching chemistry in the University of Santa Clara, was chosen city judge.

E. E. Quayle, chairman of the citizens' committee appointed at the last meeting to look into the feasibility of securing a junior college for his district, reported progress. He stated that a meeting of the citizens would be held in the city hall next Monday night to discuss the bond election to be held next month to bond the district for $300,000 to make additions to the Sequoia High School buildings at Redwood City. Mr. Pembroke anounced that arrangements were made to take the voters to the polls at Redwood City on the day of the election.

Duff Building Being Wrecked

The Duff building on Santa Cruz avenue, adjoining the Shell Oil Company's service station is being wrecked and will be replaced by a re-inforced concrete structure modern in every particular. The building to be razed is an old land mark, having been erected by Duff and Doyle many years ago. It is antiquated and must give way to modern structure.

Elect Officers

At the annual meeting of St. Joseph's Alumni held in the auditorium of St. Joseph's School last Sunday afternoon, the following officers were chosen for the coming year; John Morey, president; Miss Julia Kearney, secretary; Miss Mary Alice Sullivan, vice-president and Thomas Kearney, sergeant-at-arms.

It is with the deepest regret that the people of Menlo Park have learned of the new assignment of Rev. James Bergin, for the past three years, assistant pastor of the Church of the Nativity, to the assistant pastorate of St. Anthony's church at Oakland. In addition to his church duties here has was a teacher at the Sacred Heart College, giving several days a week to work. Father Bergin is very popular and is held in high esteem by the people of Menlo Park and they are loath to see him go. They appreciate, however, that the assignment is a decided promotion given him for his good work here by the archbishop.

Father Bergin is a graduate of a widely-known seminary in Ireland and the Washington University. He is probably the best read man in church history in the diocese. He is a constant student speding many hours a day in perusing books in history and theology. Father Bergin carries with him to his new duties the very best wishes of the people of Menlo Park. He is to be succeeded by Father Albert Foley, late of Washington. He probably will take a special course at Stanford while here.

$250,000 for Increased Facilities

The Base Hospital here is shortly to receive an appropriation of $250,000 for increased facilities at the institution. It is said the congress will during the session make a large appropriation for additional buildings to be erected on Willow road. They will be officers' quarters. Some of the funds are to be used in improving the lawns and constructing new roads through the reservation. Senator Shortridge is behind the bills and will see that they go through congress at this session. The senator is ever alert to the needs of this section. He is ably backed by Congressman Free.
